

Diversify your Residency Applicant Pipeline with AMO

Hi, We're AMO Opportunities.

We help clinical sites expand their teaching capacity and support medical trainees with accessing clinical training.

Trainees who rotate at AMO-partnered clinical sites often apply to their residency programs, helping expand quality residency applications and diversify workforce pipelines.

A Premiere Partner

AMO works with your site to set qualifications, support training, alleviate administrative burdens, and more. Our collaboration sets us apart.

Open to Graduates and Professionals

A partnership with AMO opens clinical training at your residency site to trainees from our DO and MD partner schools, helping to fill vacant residency positions. See some of our current partners below.

Diversify your Applicant Pool

According to the AMA, IMGs now account for a quarter of U.S. physicians. With 36% of medical trainees returning to their training hospital for work, hosting global medical trainees through AMO helps diversify your residency applicant pool.

AMO trainees attend more than 800 medical schools around the world and come from 100+ countries, which helps reflect your patient population in the care they receive.

Matching the Primary Care Demand with DO Students

Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine trainees are making an impact on the primary care workforce shortage.

Since 2015, DO students have been increasingly matching into Family Medicine residencies, a specialty where the majority of graduates go into primary care.

AMO's several partnerships with US DO schools in the United States can help you fill vacant Family Medicine residency positions.

Matching the Primary Care Demand with DO Students

Expanding your clinical training capacity shouldn't be at the expense of your workforce. AMO invests in its partnered clinical training sites by compensating sites through stipends for preceptors. This helps offset education expenses and reinvest in your current workforce.
