

Prepare for Residency at Hackensack Meridian Jersey Shore University Medical Center's Simulation Lab

Your students can now enhance their clinical skills and safely practice patient care through our partnership with the Simulation Lab at Hackensack Meridian Jersey Shore University Medical Center.

The Simulation Lab

The Simulation Lab at Jersey Shore leads the way in innovating how medical care is taught and learned. Through the simulation lab, students undergo an experiential and simulation-based training that replicates patient interactions and prioritizes patient safety.

Equipped with examination rooms, students play an active role in their own learning. These rooms provide students with an environment modeled after real-world clinical settings where students interact with patients under professional supervision. The lab develops clinical muscle memory, providing a space for students to safely make mistakes, learn, and retry.

Simulation-Based Learning

The simulation lab provides a learning experience designed to move students closer to their personal education and professional goals. Benefits of the experience include:

No Car Necessary

Reliable public transportation makes traveling to and from the simulation lab simple and efficient.

Located near Asbury Park, Jersey Shore is walking distance from some of New Jersey's most famous beaches and is about 1.5 hours from New York City.

CITI Training

The Collaborative Institutional Training Initiative Program ensures your students leave the simulation lab better prepared to deliver competent, ethical, and patient-centered clinical care.

Flexible Learning Model

When students attend the simulation lab in cohorts, preceptors will work with students to cater instruction and materials to the group's learning interest.
